

Learning Disabilities Association of London Region

The Learning Disabilities Association (LDA) London Region is a non-profit, charitable organization serving the region since 1967 and is a chapter of the Learning Disabilities Association of Ontario (LDAO). The agency provides leadership to the community, in learning disabilities advocacy, education, research and services. Our mission is to advance the full participation of children, youth and adults with learning disabilities (LDs) and attention deficit hyperactivity disorder (ADHD) in today's society.

LDA London Region values promoting positive community change through:

- Credible Advocacy
- Quality Services & Products
- Strategic Partnerships
- Innovation
- Informed Public Policy

LDA London Region provides both individualized support and group programs for clients and their families with LDs and ADHD. We also offer educational sessions to the community-at-large, professional groups, service agencies and businesses which aim to promote awareness and respect for those with LDs and ADHD, as well as reduce stigma and misconceptions.

LDA London Region offers a variety of programs and services that assist clients, their families and the circle of professionals who also support their needs.
